

3 WAYS
to GET YOUR WEBSITE

WITHOUT PAYING #1

By: Charles Adetola

1. Barter for Your Website

Everybody needs something!
And sometimes, what they need is really not money, but what money can buy.

What you need at this point is a website, and all you have to do is find that website designer who needs what you have. You simply offer them what they want (which you have) and they get to design your website for you.

For instance, if you are into Fashion and you seriously need a website, you can meet with a website designer and offer to pimp his/her wardrobe for the next 2 months while he works on your website.

Since a direct barter does not require payment in money, it can be utilized when money is in short supply.

2. Equity for Your Website

We all want to be part of something great! If your idea is grand, any smart designer will take this offer.

Equity is simply giving a certain percentage (shares) of your company to someone. In this regard, you may agree to share a percentage of the profit you make from your business with the website designer.

This is most applicable in a situation where most of your business will be done on your website (like eCommerce) and you need someone to be always available to perform regular maintenance and manage the website.

For instance, if you have an idea for a very profitable eCommerce line but you don't know how to design a website, you may contact a website designer and propose to offer them some percentage of the company.

3. Build Your Website by Yourself

If you really want to get something done, do it yourself! This is the option with the most rewarding benefit.

Don't panic! You're probably scared of writing codes and you know almost nothing about developing a website.
